HOUSE GROUP INCREASES AG DEP'T FUNDS

About Town

And Country
By TIMOTHEUS T.

B. C.: Gimme that big club, Leonardus! And come back here, Essarongo, before you get the gongo on the bongo.

And Samsophilus, bring out the new leopard skin. Easter's just around the corner and I want to try it on.

It's back to the cave man days, boys and girls, and it's despite my bulging solar plexus that ain't gonna look so good in animal skins.

But what's gotta be has gotta be and cave man days it's gonna be.

I just got a letter and its first sentence was this: "Welcome to charter membership in the world's first underground press club." And to prove my membership I've got a card just like a Mariner's club card only the printing is different. This one is already made out and it gives W. K. Tim Turner all the privileges afforded press and radio representatives at Meramec Caverns, Stanton, Mo. Now the thing to find out is just what privileges are afforded press and radio representatives. Maybe the paying customers get lots of privileges and maybe they cannot afford many privileges to press and wireles.

Anyhow I got the card, No. 751, and I have it in my billfold along with my South Seven Conference pass, my HTHS pass, my Blue Cross card, my special deputy card and my wife's picture.

But to get down to serious business, the letter says that "Fourth Estaters (we newspaper people always come fourth) are used to belonging to press clubs.

"However," it continues, "none can compare in uniqueness to the one that just opened at Meramec Caverns, Stanton, Mo. The five-story cave has assigned quarters for the exclusive use of newspaper, radio and television personnel in honor of its 100,000,000th anniversary."

(I wonder who's been keeping track of the birthday anniversaries.)

It continues: "There are facilities for hunting, fishing and boating at the mammoth underground emporium. A special building has been constructed for lodging and meals. Special guides have been retained to take members on tours not open to the public. The Press Club will be open seven days a week throughout the year. The club is on the same site Jesse James and his gang used as a hide-out during the 1870s. Recent studies have acclaimed the cave to be the safest bombproof shelter. The Press Club is an ideal place for Fourth Estaters who want to get away from continual ringing of phones."

Say, you wouldn't think for a moment that Meramec Caverns has been trying to pry some free publicity out of me, would you? I wonder.

Mother, Daughters, Lost in Forest

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Porter Lines and her three daughters were tired but otherwise in good condition today after spending a night under the boards of an old barn when they became lost in a 300-acre forest.

Mrs. Lines and her daughters, Emily, 13, and Jody and Deedee, 9-year-old twins, wandered off a trail during a hike to help Emily win a Girl Scout nature merit badge.

Mrs. Lines said they found an old, abandoned barn and spent the night there, huddling together to keep warm. She said a violent rainstorm blew up during the night, and the girls shivered in their play shorts.

The girls and their mother started out for a bird sanctuary but became confused when dusk came and the storm approached.

During the night a naturalist at the sanctuary noticed the Lines' car parked at the sanctuary and notified the woman's husband who called police.

Sheriff's deputies found the three girls and Mrs. Lines Thursday and took them home.

Mrs. Bert Bixler, 62, Former Resident, Dies in California

Mrs. Cassie Bixler, 62, wife of Bert Bixler, former residents of Eldorado and Carrier Mills communities, who for the past 25 years have lived in Long Beach, Calif., died there Thursday at 6 p. m.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Elouise Kline, and two granddaughters.

The funeral will be Monday at Long Beach and the burial will be there.

46 Killed, 21 Missing in Four Plane Disasters

South African Jet Believed Down in Tyrrhenian Sea

By United Press
At least 46 persons were killed Thursday and 21 others were missing and believed dead in four aviation disasters, two of them involving collisions in the air.

A South African Comet jet airliner with 21 persons aboard, three of them Americans, was believed to have crashed into the Tyrrhenian Sea 100 miles south of Naples.

A U. S. Navy searchplane found a large oil slick in the area midway between Salerno and the northern shores of Sicily. The pilot reported there was no trace of survivors.

The plane, carrying 14 passengers and seven crewmen, was on the Rome to Cairo leg of a flight from London to Johannesburg.

The three Americans aboard were identified tentatively as O. L. Anderson, American Fork, Utah; R. L. Wilkinson, Marblehead, Mass.; and F. R. Harbison; no address available.

Comet Flights Suspended

The plane was on loan to South Africa from the British Overseas Airways Corporation which immediately ordered Comet flights suspended throughout the world.

Thirty-seven persons were killed at Moose Jaw, Sask., Thursday when a training plane rammed a four-engine airliner of Trans-Canada Airlines. The dead included all 35 persons aboard the airliner, the pilot of the training plane and a cleaning woman who was trapped in a house onto which the wreckage fell. All other victims were residents of Canada, Britain or Scotland.

Three separate investigations into the disaster began today. An inquest also was scheduled to start.

At Oxnard, Calif., four Air Force men were killed Thursday night when two F94C Starfire jets collided in the air over Oxnard Air Force Base. One plane was coming in for a landing and the second was taking off when the collision occurred.

Five Killed in Japan

Five U. S. airmen died near Nagoya, Japan, Thursday when their KB29 tanker plane caught fire and exploded after refueling a fighter plane in the air. Six other men aboard the plane parachuted to safety.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The South African Comet was reported down in an area some 200 miles south of Elba, where a Comet crashed in January with a loss of 35 lives.

Capt. Ian Bell, pilot of the Trans-Canada Airlines transport, was with the ground by radio when he saw the Canadian Air Force trainer headed for his big ship over Moose Jaw.

"I can't miss him," Bell shouted into his radio just before the collision.

Bell tried to steer his wobbling ship over a golf course after the collision. But the craft blew up in the air as it reached a row of houses on the edge of the golf course. Some of the flaming wreckage showered onto a school building where 400 children were attending class.

The crash was the third and worst in TCA's history and the airlines first fatal accident in seven years.

Grant Hearing on Probation for Three Eldorado Youths

Sentencing of three Eldorado youths on petit larceny charges, scheduled for yesterday in county court, was held up when their attorney, Lester R. Lightfoot, was granted a hearing on probation for the youths.

Judge Ralph W. Choiser set the date of April 26 for the hearing, which will involve Floyd Eugene Jones, Johnny Dwain Jones and Roy Roberts.

Yesterday a jury case, Department of Public Works and Buildings, State of Illinois, vs. Audrey Hamilton et al, was settled out of court. It was a condemnation suit involving Route 45 right-of-way near Carrier Mills.

Voters Reminded Of School Elections In County Tomorrow

Voters today were reminded that there will be school elections all over the county tomorrow afternoon to name members of boards of education and school directors.

In most cases two members will be named in the 12 board of education elections and there is only opposition in races for members of the Eldorado high school and the Carrier Mills city school boards.

The school director elections are always write-in affairs.

In board of education elections the polls must be open from 12 noon until 7 p. m. For school director the polls must be open for two designated hours between noon and 7 p. m.

The Harrisburg city school election will be at the Junior high, the High school balloting at the city hall and Dorrisville district will vote at Dorrisville school.

USW Offers Four-Point Program To White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House today considered a four-step federal program proposed by the CIO United Steelworkers of America to bolster the nation's economy and help relieve unemployment.

The proposals were presented Thursday during an hour-long meeting between President Eisenhower and a USW delegation, headed by president David J. McDonald.

McDonald told the President the steel industry was hard hit by layoffs. He said production during the last week of March fell to 68 per cent of capacity, with no substantial pick-up in sight. McDonald added the nation was losing about 40,000 net tons of steel per year.

"Also 189,334 members of our union in basic steel and metal fabricating have been laid off and are unemployed. Another 257,026 members are working a short work week," the union chief said.

The four-point program called for an immediate increase in benefits received by the unemployed and those retired on Social Security pensions; an increase in personal income tax exemptions from $600 to $800; a five billion dollar expansion of federal public works, and a similar increase in home construction and slum clearance programs.

Reuther Charges Eisenhower with Depression Policies

CHICAGO (AP)—CIO President Walter Reuther charged Thursday night that the Eisenhower administration is following policies which led to the depression of the 1930s.

Reuther, in an address to the CIO United Auto Workers' International Education Conference, estimated that the nation's unemployed has risen to five million.

He said that the Republican administration is following "an obsolete, insane trickle-down" policy on taxes which seeks to build prosperity "from the top down rather than the bottom up."

"It didn't work in 1929," Reuther said, "and it won't work in 1954." He said that the elections this year offer an opportunity to change the complexion of Congress.

"We'll even the score in '54," he said.

Reuther charged that President Eisenhower, in his nationwide TV address Monday night, "didn't talk about the unpleasant economic facts."

"Our problem," Reuther said, "is not lack of confidence but lack of purchasing power."

Order Hearings On Auto Insurance

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—State Insurance Director Robert E. Barrett has ordered the National Automobile Underwriters Assn. to show cause why its current premium rates "should not be declared excessive and reduced."

The association represents 240 companies writing automobile physical damage insurance in Illinois. The premium rates which Barrett believes excessive are those covering damage to the insured's vehicle and not liability rates.

Barrett set May 4 as a hearing date on the citation.

Barrett said the companies represented by the association collected premiums of 64 million dollars in 1953, about 60 per cent of the total premiums paid on this type of insurance in the state.

He said an analysis of the "most recent available statistical information" shows the rates of the association firms are excessive.

Groves to Begin Highway Paving Around May 1

New Dixon Springs-Mitchellville Road Will Be Ready by Fall

The S. J. Groves Construction Co. of Minneapolis, which has the contract to pave the approximately 23 miles of the Mitchellville-to-Dixon Springs highway, is setting up in Harrisburg and plans to start the paving job around May 1.

A. J. McKay of Springfield, vice president of the company, is in town with other key men making arrangements for the big job. The company already has started construction of an office building near the apex of Routes 45 and the old Route 34 highway on the Ray Durham Lumber Co. property.

With McKay here are J. F. Healey of Minneapolis, paving superintendent, who said he plans to move his family here during the work; and Chet Farrell, project manager. Russell McDowell of Harrisburg, who has had lots of experience with big contractors, will be employed in the office.

Mr. McKay is no stranger to a number of people in the area. He was here when the Groves company did the $1,200,000 project of grading this same road and installing culverts in 1948-49.

He said that the 22-foot paving would start the first week in May and that he expected it to be open for traffic in the fall. Some of the finishing operations might have to be held off until spring but the road should be ready for traffic in the fall, nevertheless, he stated.

Mr. McKay said the road would be open to local traffic while the work was going on but that through traffic would be prohibited.

The building under construction is a frame structure of 24 by 32 feet dimensions. In addition, there will be a short way, radio tower at the office, which will connect the office to the operations by radio.

Brownell to Report on Fight Against Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. goes before the nation tonight to make a first-hand report on the Eisenhower administration's fight against Communism in the United States.

Justice Department sources said Brownell is expected to call for new measures to beef up the crack down on domestic Reds by the Justice Department and the FBI. He is also expected to review what has been done to curb Communist activities since the Republicans came to power last year.

Brownell's speech at 9 p. m. EST is billed as a follow-up to President Eisenhower's report to the nation last Monday night. It will be beamed to the nation by radio and television.

Justice Department officials said that the speech will be completely non-partisan. They warned against any speculation that Brownell would release any sensational revelations such as his last November charge that former President Truman promoted former Assistant Treasury Secretary Harry Dexter White despite FBI reports he was a Russian spy.

Party Should Register
Instead, they said, Brownell will describe how the Communist Party is now operating—as an open party, underground and through Communist fronts—and how the administration is proceeding against it.

He is expected to discuss a ruling by the Subversive Activities Control Board last April that the Communist Party is a Moscow-directed organization that should register with the department under the McCarran Communist Control Act.

Justice sources said Brownell also will discuss other phases of the Department's anti-Communist drive such as the prosecutions, begun by the Truman administration, of top Communists under the Smith Act.

Reports Auto Stolen Then Remembers It Is In Garage for Washing

An Eldorado motorist reported to county officers early last night that his Chrysler automobile had been stolen from its parking place.

A radio message was sent out to state police in southern Illinois to be on the lookout for an automobile of its description.

Later in the evening the car owner phoned back to county officers declaring he had forgotten that he had sent his car to a garage to be washed.

Stratton Says 9-Man GOP Senate Race is 'Healthy' for Party

CHICAGO (AP)—Gov. William G. Stratton says the nine-man race for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senate has been a "healthy" development for the party and the voters.

In the state legislative races, Stratton said he is giving moral support to lawmakers with "good records," including support for his program last year, but he said he is not telling anyone to support his choices.

Activities and statements of the senatorial candidates in the final stretch of the campaign included: Joseph T. Meeks: The government "should not even flirt" with the idea of sending American troops to Indochina.

Edgar M. Elbert: The draft should be ended and "something better" should replace it to create "a military striking force trained in the scientific developments that make modern warfare."

John B. Crane: Sen. Paul H. Douglas, the Democratic incumbent who is running unopposed for re-election, is a "modern Don Quixote, who builds up imaginary windmills so he can attack them."

Discuss Change In Treasurers at School Meeting

Current school problems, especially those surrounding the change from the township school treasurer system, were discussed at a spring conference and dinner meeting of school officials at Mt. Vernon Thursday evening.

The event was sponsored by the Egyptian Division of the Illinois Association of School Boards.

In attendance from Harrisburg were: Dale Wilson, Saline county superintendent of schools; Raymond Foster, G. O. Davenport and Dr. W. D. Tuttle, representing HTHS; and Russell Malan, Hudson Muggie and Curtis Small, representing the Harrisburg City schools.

Mr. Muggie, presided at a discussion program concerning the school treasurers. As of July 1, the present system of township treasurers, who are appointed by school trustees, will be abolished. Board member school districts may appoint their own treasurers, or join with other districts in appointing them. School director districts must use the same treasurer as the overlying high school districts.

The treasurers will be appointed early in May so they may make arrangements to take over their duties. The transition to the new type of treasurer will be made through the office of the county superintendent of schools and the seven-man county board of school trustees, which will also assume duties previously charged to various township school trustees.

Dr. Russell Purdy To Preach at First Baptist Church Sunday

GI Joe to Get New Uniform; But Not Until '55

WASHINGTON (AP)—GI Joe is going to get a dashing "new look" uniform—but not until he wears out his present olive drab pants.

It will be the fall of 1955 at the earliest before the lowly private can be a "man of distinction" in his new gray-green uniform.

After nearly 10 years of indecision, Army generals have finally decided to discard the traditional olive drab uniform with the "like" jacket in favor of an "Army green" uniform with a single-breasted coat.

But now, Army officials said, it will take another 18 months to order the new cloth, have it cut up into uniforms and issued. And it will be at least another two years before the last olive drab uniform is worn out and the changeover complete.

The new Army uniform was adopted as a morale booster so the soldier could compete sartorially with the other services and with civilians.

Benton, Sesser, Sparta Appeal For Water Pipe

Stratton Expresses Concern About Economy of Area

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Three Southern Illinois cities awaited word from the U. S. Civil Defense Administration today on their appeals for aid in getting emergency water supplies.

Gov. William G. Stratton announced Thursday he had forwarded to civil defense authorities the requests of Sparta, Sesser and Benton for supplies of pipe to help bring in extra water.

The city of Olney already has obtained pipe through the Civil Defense Administration for the same purpose. A formal request from the governor is necessary.

The pipe is loaned by the federal government. Cities must bear the cost of shipping and installing it. Stratton discussed the drought and economic conditions in southern Illinois at his news conference Thursday. He said he was "concerned" about the area's economy.

"It's an area we're going to have to give considerable attention to, both from an economic and a transportation standpoint," he said.

Stratton said delegations have visited him recently to urge construction of several highways in Southern Illinois, including routes from Dongola to Herrin, Alton to Centralia, and paralleling Ill. 3 in the southwestern part of the state.

He said all are under study and there was some possibility of utilizing toll roads for at least one of the routes.

Officers Installed By Harrisburg Elks Lodge 1058

Small, esteemed lecturing knight; Wayne Dixon, secretary; Harry McCabe, treasurer; Howard Logsdon, tiler, and William S. Eppheimer, trustee for three years.

Also installed were three officers who were appointed by the new exalted ruler. They are Jimmy Byrd, esquire; Jack Blackard, organist; Don Williams, chaplain, and Owen Hunsinger, inner guard.

Army to Draft 18,000 in June

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department said today 18,000 men will be drafted for the Army in June.

No men will be drafted for the Navy or Air Force.

The June call is the same as the number ordered drafted each month since last February when calls were dropped from the January level of 23,000.

With the June draft, there will have been 1,697,430 men drafted since September, 1950. All but 21,430 for the Marine Corps were inducted into the Army.

Sec'y Benson Is Accused of Breach of Faith

Approved Bill is $45 Million More Than Budget Request

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee voted today to give the administration more money than it asked for farm programs and scolded it for not spending more this year.

It said Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson committed a "breach of faith" with Congress by refusing to spend certain funds made available for the fiscal year for so-called "action" programs to aid farmers.

The committee sent to the House floor a bill carrying $698,410,313 in direct cash and $320,500,000 in loan authorizations for the Agriculture Department for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The cash total was the same as sought by the administration. The loan authorization was $45,000,000 greater. The increase was earmarked for Rural Electrification Administration REA loans.

Funds Less Last Year
The cash and loan money combined exceeded the administration budget request by 4.7 per cent. However, the total was 10 per cent less than Congress provided last year.

The measure did not include funds for the multi-billion-dollar farm price support program which is financed by a separate fund.

The bill carried $191,700,000 in cash for the agricultural conservation subsidy programs for this calendar year. It set a limit of 250 million dollars on funds to be appropriated next year for the 1955 program. Of the latter, $5 million dollars is for use in connection with a program to be devised to discourage farmers from planting other crops on land "diverted" from surplus crops.

It was the sixth of the regular appropriation bills to clear the committee this year. It was the first in many years for which the committee failed to make even a token pay.

To Pay For Cattle Destroyed

Instead, the committee denounced as "arbitrary and unrealistic" many of the cutbacks in farm programs proposed by the administration for the next fiscal year. It restored some of these cuts in full, others partially. It accomplished this without exceeding the overall recommended cash total of cutting funds requested by the administration for other department activities.

For example, the committee cut out $15,600 sought for agriculture television programs, but added $228,000 for agriculture yearbooks which the administration proposed to eliminate.

The committee torpedoed administration plans to eliminate payments of indemnities to owners of cattle destroyed when found to be infected with brucellosis or tuberculosis. It voted to provide one million dollars compared with $800,000 last year.

Hits Freezing of Funds

It voted to stop the administration from going ahead with plans to eliminate 90 of the Soil Conservation Service's present 326 area field offices. The committee added $4,510,671 to the administration budget for the service and said that would permit hiring additional

NEW YORK (UP)—Fritz Scheff, star of opera's golden era for whom Victor Herbert wrote "Kiss Me Again," died in her East Side apartment Thursday of a heart attack. She was 75.

Miss Scheff's body was found by a cleaning woman. The Viennese-born singer, who had lived in seclusion since appearing at the Palace Theater in 1950, recently was featured on the nationwide television program "This is Your Life."

At the time of her death she was preparing for an appearance on Ed Sullivan's Sunday night TV show, "Toasts of the Town."

Cancer: Where We Stand Today; Science Beginning To Learn Growth Factors

By CHARLES S. CAMERON, M.D.
Medical Director,
American Cancer Society

NEW YORK (NEA)—The exciting thing in cancer research is that scientists are beginning to learn some of the factors that control growth. The nearly 1000 researchers who are working under American Cancer Society grants have pierced the intricate veil of chemical mystery in many places. They have found that cancer, being abnormal growth, is a product of body chemistry that involves almost every minute function both within and without the cell, the unit of tissue that multiplies by dividing.

Some of this knowledge has been made available for clinical experiments. The desperate efforts to halt cancer growth in hopeless cases by removing the adrenal glands and even the pituitary, the body's master gland hidden deep in the skull cavity, were mostly met with failure.

Some believed that complete control of the glands might be a means of halting cancer. By removing these glands and administering doses of hormones necessary to maintain normal body processes it seemed, in theory at least, that the growth machinery might be strictly controlled.

It didn't happen that way. After the operations, studies of the patients showed that they were still excreting hormones and upsetting the possibility of exterior control of growth.

Now from the laboratories comes the discovery that when certain animal glands are removed, apparently others take over their function. This opens the door to further research that may eventually bring the goal of endocrine control to reality.

In other areas of experimentation, science is concerned with some of the possible factors that upset orderly growth controls and start cancer.

One of these possibilities is that some cancers at least are virus-caused. One of the striking bits of circumstantial evidence for this hypothesis is the existence of a compound found only in genes of the cell's nucleus and also in viruses.

This vital substance, DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) is being probed in scores of laboratories. Some are trying to find out how DNA takes part in cell division. Other experiments show that this nucleic acid increases as rats are fed a diet producing liver cancer.

Actual viruses have been found that produce cancer in animals. A substance has been isolated from mouse milk that causes breast cancer in mice. A cancerous disease in chickens is known to be virus-caused. A type of rabbit cancer has been verified as resulting from a virus.

But in man the quest continues and no concrete evidence to incriminate a virus yet exists. The laboratory search for cancer's origin ranges all the way from protein synthesis to genetics.

The fabulous efforts to break down the various intricate parts of protein, out of which all tissue is built, have produced some results.

Almost endless combinations of elements, intricately contrived, form amino acids which are bound with each other into peptides, and woven together into fantastic patterns making up the protein molecule. Some of these chains of carbon, oxygen and hydrogen have been analyzed. Chemists now think they can soon break down some of the simpler proteins. The remotest secrets of growth might then be solved.

What is the role of the genes? Do these sub-microscopic cell particles that blueprint the body's characteristics hold the final secret of cancer? Possibly. Scientists are learning more about mutations, sudden changes in a species that are handed on to progeny, and how they possibly are due to missing or misplaced genes. Can similar genetic "accidents" be responsible for tissue changes and cancer? We are edging nearer to the answer.

Nearly every system in the body is under experimentation. The whole process of metabolism is patiently being studied. Certain enzymes that catalyze various steps are under suspicion and may soon be acquitted or convicted.

One enzyme normally occurring in tissues has been found in the blood of some cancer patients. Studies of it are continuing. Even plant enzymes that affect growth are under investigation. Those responsible for the resting stage of buds and bulbs may hold clues to growth control.

The chemical attack on cancer has been more closely pressed in scores of institutions. Mass screening of compounds to find one that might halt cancer has turned up a few that have a retarding effect on growth. Some of these have been used in treating leukemia, with temporary results. But months, and sometimes years, have been added to some patients' lives.

Out of the laboratories too have come new facts about radioactive materials and new means of attacking cancer with more powerful X-rays. In addition to advances in surgery—successful operations for cancer that would have started the surgeon of 10 years ago—the means of saving more and more lives each year are steadily advancing.

There are only a few of the highlights in the wide and complex map of cancer slowly being drafted. It may be necessary to chart the last tree in the thickest forest of growth before cancer control is discovered. Or it may not. Somewhere along the way a highroad, up to now only imagined in some obscure researcher's mind, might suddenly loom clear and straight, leading swiftly to the conquest of man's cruellest enemy.

MONUMENT FOR FREEDOM—This is a sketch of the proposed "Freedom Shrine" to be erected in Washington, D. C., as a living monument to Americans' individual rights. The monument would be 110 feet high, with the basic rights of Americans enumerated on its four sides. Capped with a perpetual "freedom flame" and busts of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Franklin, its inner rooms would contain copies of America's freedom documents and a place where visitors could sign their personal pledge to freedom. Laniel Says Chinese Reds Have Increased Aid To Indochina Rebels

PARIS (AP)—Premier Joseph Laniel told the French National Assembly today that the Chinese Reds have sharply increased their aid to the Communist rebels in Indochina in recent weeks.

The premier, in an eight-minute speech, said that if the trend of Red Chinese assistance continues, he might have to interrupt the Parliament's Easter recess, starting tonight, for a special session.

Laniel reaffirmed that France's objective in Indochina remains an honorable peace through negotiation.

House in Dustbowl Can't Be Kept Clean

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP)—Mrs. Wayne Campbell stood, broom in hand, in a foot-wide path through dunes of dust on her front porch and vowed she would sweep no more "until I can see the sun."

Inside, sheer curtains hung in awkward folds, and with dust, dust blanketed tabletops and rose from the carpets in small puffs with each footstep. It formed symmetrical little patterns on the window sills. It was something you could taste, literally in the air.

The worst dust storm in 15 years—since the dust bowl era—had subsided.

But Mrs. Campbell, like thousands of other home-makers on the great plains of the Southwest, knows that the wind probably will rise again. New billows of dust borne on the wind will sweep through every hairline crack and cover every cranny of the house.

Spring cleaning under such circumstances, Mrs. Campbell said, is futile. For her and others like her there will be no cleaning until the windy season ends, or until steady rains fall.

Mrs. Campbell, wife of a Garden City abstractor, said she hoped that would be about Easter.

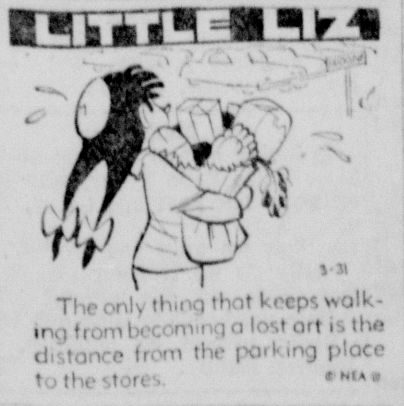

In the meantime, she keeps a path swept from the front door to the public walk. She dusts superficially each day. And she hopes to take the curtains down and shake them some clear day. She plans to wash the dust-grimed windows on the north and west "so we can see out."

But there will be no general cleaning for a while, she said. "You only wear yourself out trying to keep a house clean when the dusts come one right after another," she said.

Mrs. Campbell was philosophical about the dust, recalling that in the seven-year drought of the 1930's the housekeeping problem was much worse.

Houses are built tighter now, she said. And, in a prosperous era, they have been kept in top repair. "I remember back in the '30s everybody hung wet sheets over the door and windows when a duster was blowing hard," she said. "Now everybody has storm sashes that do the job better."

The only thing that keeps walking from becoming a lost art is the distance from the parking place to the stores.

KILL WITH CARE

BY HUGH LAWRENCE NELSON

Copyright by Hugh Lawrence Nelson. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Sons of two prominent residents of Colorado City are involved in murder and extortion. Young Eddie Stone, the mayor's son, may actually have committed the murder before his body was found. Young Eddie, a mental defective, had written a confession note before he was killed. But two people killed Chief Otto Drower, and the path of suspicion has led to young Tony Hughes, son of acting chief of police, for the Hughes car has been seen near the filling station. Tony Hughes now is in Denver, where he has been attending college.

XVII
Chief Hughes said his son had been visiting in town this week. "Matter of fact he came up to go to Mark's wedding. But he went back to Denver on the afternoon bus." He glanced at his watch. "Be yesterday afternoon now I guess. My son is attending summer school in Denver."

"I understand he's taking a degree in psychology?" Jim put in. "That's right."
"Then perhaps Eddie Stone would interest him—as a case?"
Hughes said pityingly. "Apparently you don't know much about the subject. There is nothing interesting in a mental defective."
"Your son tell you that?"
"Yes." Chief Hughes seemed to think the statement was a little too blunt. "Don't misunderstand. My son was always kind to Eddie Stone. But then, my son is fundamentally kind. His great grasp of—of things gives him a clear and kindly viewpoint. But what I'm getting at is that there was absolutely nothing in common between them."
"I've heard your son won a science prize in high school, and that he wrote the senior class play."
"Wrote and produced it," the father said.
Mark Richards was impatient.

He pushed a phone toward his superior. "This talk isn't getting us anywhere. Call up your son and make sure he's in Denver. Make sure he took that afternoon bus."

Chief Hughes' face was colored with anger, but the blinking and sliding motion of his eyes betrayed another emotion. Nevertheless he snatched up the phone, gave the operator a Denver number. "Fine time of morning to phone," he grumbled.

"Mind if we listen in?" Mark asked.

"I insist on it."

A young-sounding voice on the Denver end of the line said, "Hello?"
"Tony?"
"No. This is George. George Westrick."
"Oh, yes, George. This is Mr. Hughes, Tony's father. Could I speak to Tony?"
"I'll go see if he's in yet, Mr. Hughes. I don't think he is."
"Go see," Hughes ordered.
Jim and Mark exchanged glances during the few minutes' wait. The voice of George Westrick came back. "He's not in yet, Mr. Hughes. He went out to catch a late show and I guess he's not back yet."

"A late show? Do you know what time it is?"
"Yes, sir."
"George, is Tony out playing poker again?"
"No, no, Mr. Hughes. Nothing like that. He got back this afternoon on the bus as I guess you know. We sat around quite awhile after dinner and then Tony decided to go to a show."

"But he was there this afternoon and evening?"
"Oh, yes sir. He got back on the bus as you know."
"Thank you, George. You might leave a message for Tony to call me when he comes in. I don't care what time it is."

"I'll do that, Mr. Hughes. Good night." A receiver was hung up quickly.

Jim and Mark Richards went back to the other office where Chief Hughes was just replacing his own receiver. "You heard everything?"
"Yes."

"I hope you're satisfied then," Hughes said. "And now that's cleared up, I'll be getting along back to Ed Stone's. Shouldn't have left my wife alone there this long. If Ed should wake up again, no telling what he'd do."

As Hughes left the room his eyes darted for a moment toward the piles of cartons. He did not say anything but hurried out.

Mark looked at Jim Dunn quizzically.
"Good alibi," Jim said. "If you want to believe George."
"Yeah," Richards said. "If you believe George."
"I wondered if I was imaging things."

"No. That Westrick boy was covering up for Tony, Jr. Something's going on, all right."
"Poker, you think?"
"Could be. Could be anything."
"George Westrick," Jim said. "G. W. The initials on the pen."
Mark Richards nodded slowly. "Of course, it could be coincidence."

The search of Eddie Stone's room produced no sign of any of the money. Neither Mark nor Jim actually expected it would, yet the search was something which had to be done.

There was a huge chest of mechanical toys. There was a single bed, a white dresser, a small bookcase filled with picture editions of fairy stories. A small radio still hummed with power although the station to which it was tuned was off the air.

Mark snapped off the radio after noting the station to which it was tuned. "We might get something from that. Time I mean, if he had a favorite program. No point in wasting any more energy here."

"The fairy stories," Jim said. "They might be important. So many of them, Mark. Those shelves would fill a world, an imaginary boy's world with magic potions and sleeping princes. The note."

General Pays For Dog House

WASHINGTON 12—Notice to taxpayers: The general has paid up for that $1,200 dog house he built at government expense.

This reassuring report was delivered to the House Armed Services committee. It had expressed a keen interest in the matter.

Maj. Gen. Roderick R. Allen wanted his dogs to have the best possible accommodations when he was at Ft. Dix, N. J. For their comfort he provided a plush kennel and a 90-by-60-foot enclosure for exercise.

Allen mentioned in official papers that he considered the project "in the best interest of the government for security purposes." So the government paid the bill.

The General Accounting Office, government watchdog in these delicate affairs, mentioned the incident to the Armed Services committee a while back. The congressmen suggested that perhaps the general should pay for the canine palace himself.

The Army investigated. It told the committee late Thursday its inquiry was completed, that "a board of officers fixed pecuniary liability" for the dog house, and that the general had paid up.

This is a good thing because President Eisenhower had suggested the general, now at Ft. Devens, Mass., should maybe live in the dog house himself.

Summerfield Outlines His Proposed Changes in Pay for Postal Employees

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has outlined the proposed changes in postal pay in an announcement released today by Postmaster A. M. Hetherington.

Mr. Summerfield states that when the present management of the Postal establishment took office just 14 months ago there were found many injustices in wages paid postal employees. This was due largely, he said, to five across-the-board pay increases made during the past 10 years. Such increases, he stated, gave every employee the same raise in pay regardless of skill or type of job.

He found the differences in pay levels between jobs of widely varying responsibility and skill were so small that there was little advantage in promotion and little incentive for advancement. Therefore good employees were unwilling to accept the more responsible jobs because the extra pay offered did not compensate for the extra duties assumed. Many employees preferred remaining in the easier jobs because both skilled and unskilled workers receive the same pay.

Immediate Pay Increase
After a year of careful study the following plan was presented to Congress to give Postal employees 80 million dollars more in additional wages per year.

The plan gives immediate increases in pay to 400,000 of the 500,000 employees.

Gives average pay increases of 5 cents an hour or $100 per year. Some will get more. A few will less than that.

Widthens the differences in pay by skills and degree of responsibility. Puts a premium on incentive and rewards ambitions and merit.

Does not reduce the salary of any employee.

Summerfield stated the more than 20 bills also offered in Congress fail to correct any of the inequities or to provide incentives. They call for the same flat across-the-board raises with little regard for greater skills or responsibility.

The bill receiving the most attention would give a flat $800 per year increase—or 40 cents an hour or more—to everyone of the half million postal employees. It would cost 400 million dollars a year.

Have Job Security
The Postmaster General pointed out the average salary of a regular letter carrier is $4,067 a year.

Many, he said, receive as much as $4,370 a year. Postal clerks get the same pay.

"This works out on the average of $1.96 per hour—with a maximum of $1.96 per hour is 17 cents per hour more than the average pay for production workers in manufacturing plants. Under our plan the advantage of these postal employees over workers in private industry would be increased to approximately 22 cents per hour."

The postal employee, Summerfield stated, also has great job security. He gets on the average four weeks of vacation with pay each year. Long time employees get five weeks of vacation with pay each year.

He also gets 13 days of sick leave each year with full pay. If he doesn't use all this in any one year the unused portion can be applied in any following year, Summerfield said.

Sen. Bridges Supports Knowland in Proposing Aid Be Used to Force Unity

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Styles Bridges said today American foreign aid should be based on help to foreign nations "willing to help themselves" in critical situations such as Indochina.

The New Hampshire Republican, who is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said he thought Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland "struck a responsive chord in both political parties" in his statement Thursday on Indochina and Korea.

Two Democrats disagreed with Knowland's suggestions. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.) said it would be "playing into the hands of the Soviet." And Sen. J. William Fulbright (Ark.) said aid should be dispensed on merit, not as part of a bargain.

Bridges lined up with Knowland. He made his statements after a White House conference with President Eisenhower in which he brought the President up to date on the status of money bills in the Senate.

Knowland, meantime, sounded a new warning on the gravity of the Indochina crisis. He said the fate of what is left of "free Asia" may be sealed within the next 60 to 90 days by the fighting now raging there.

Knowland told a dinner commemorating the 12th anniversary of the fall of Bataan that if the Reds take Indochina they will then move on the Philippines, Japan, Formosa, Australia and New Zealand one by one. The fall of these nations, he said, would force this country's defense line "back to the Pacific Coast — to the states of Washington, Oregon and California."

Beef cows can winter successfully the January issue of Successful Farming Magazine. In successful experiments last winter at the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station, cattle were fed either grass silage and hay or corn silage and hay, along with bonemeal and trace mineralized salt. NO PROTEIN SUPPLEMENT OR GRAIN WAS FED.

Catholic Bishop Attacks McCarthy As Threat to American Freedoms

CHICAGO (AP)—Bishop Bernard J. Sheil of the Roman Catholic Church said today Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) is a "city slicker" who is threatening American freedoms.

The Most Rev. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, attacked McCarthy, head of a Senate investigating subcommittee, in a speech before 2,500 delegates to the CIO United Auto Workers' education conference here. He said he was not speaking for the Catholic Church but for himself as a private citizen. McCarthy himself is a Catholic.

The Most Rev. Sheil commented on McCarthy's activities in investigating communism in the United States and added that "this kind of ridiculous goings-on is seriously described as anti-communism."

"If you will pardon a very low-brow comment," he added, "I say 'phooey'."

"In my view," he said, "we have been victims in the last few years of a kind of shell game. We have been treated like country rubes."

House Group Boosts Ag Department Funds

employees to handle the increasing workload.

The committee "deplored the arbitrary action" of the department last year in freezing funds voted by Congress.

It said such action as the freezing of one million dollars in Farm-ers Home Administration funds and later use of that money by Extension Service was "a breach of faith with Congress and seriously damages confidence and working relationships" between Congress and the department.

More For Salaries

"The committee would like to impress on the department that it is the authority and responsibility of Congress to determine the scope of the various programs within the department," the group reported.

The committee voted to provide more than the budget recommended for salaries and expenses of EHA, REA, SCS and the Forest Service. It also voted to provide $9,011,416 more than the budget recommended for the national school lunch program.

It voted $99,600,000 for the Commodity Stabilizing Service; $38,876,514 for the Extension Service and $15,453,708 for grants to state experiment stations. As compared with the budget, this amounted to cuts of $2,500,000; $4,723,486 and $4,000,000.

NEW BREED OF "HEAVIES"

You can look for a new breed of chickens to show up in this country before long. It is a combination of big, heavy-laying New Hampshires and Barred Rocks, reports Capper's Farmer. After several years of work, E. A. Lloyd, University of British Columbia, Vancouver, has produced birds that are uniform in color and type.

Harrison and Patton Lead Way in Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Veteran E. J. (Dutch) Harrison and brash amateur Billy Jo Patton gave the Masters golf tournament a new look today as they headed into the second round with 70's that the "old regulars" of the event couldn't match.

In a weird round that started under fair and hot skies but wound up dripping from a violent rainstorm, the expected sub-par scores didn't materialize Thursday. Jack Burke Jr., and Lloyd Mangrum scored 71's.

Ben Hogan, the defending champion, and Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., had par 72's and that was it. That Harrison managed to tie Patton for the first-day lead was rather amazing.

The 43-year old "Arkansas Traveler," one of the hottest shooters over the last 15 years in the minor open tournaments but never a major winner, scored a 34 on the first nine, due mainly to an eagle on the par-five second, where he sank a 25-footer.

Going into the back nine, Harrison bogeyed the par-four 10th and hooked his shot into the drink on No. 11. While his gallery gave him up as the rains broke, Harrison worked his way to a one-over five with a 15-foot putt.

Only a slow train through Arkansas could have weathered the weather for the next few holes but Harrison got a par on 12, birdied the 13th after his second landed just off the edge and went on to birdie the 15th with a six-foot putt. He came home in par as the storm blew over.

Harrison won the Western Open tournament last year and picked up $4,800 in taking the San Diego and Bing Crosby events earlier this year, proving he was at his best as an ever-ready money winner.

Patton's 70 was the best first-day score by an amateur since Frank Stranahan shot the same figure in the 1949 Masters.

Patton is a Morgantown, N. C., lumberman who plays golf for fun but has the deadpan of a seasoned pro. He struck tremendous drives Thursday and on the first nine he had the putts to go with them — nudges of 8, 20, 16, and 15 feet that all dropped for birdies.

His putting turned sour on the way back but his drives and approaches were so good that he three-putted two par-five holes and put away with pars. He bogeyed the 10th by firing wide to the left and the 11th by overshooting on his second.

Hogan, who birdied one hole and went over on another on the first nine, stayed par the rest of the way and with the field pretty well scrambled he was in an ominous position — for the rest of the guys.

Find Body of Unidentified Girl in Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—The body of an unidentified girl, nude and mutilated by her killer and by scavengers, was found by two University of Colorado freshmen on the bank of Boulder Creek seven miles west of here Thursday night.

Sheriff Art Everson said the slim, red-haired girl undoubtedly was slain. But he said identification probably would be extremely difficult, and there were no leads of any value.

Wayne Swanson, 19, of Batavia, Ill., and Jim Andres, 19, of Mackinaw, Ill., both freshmen at the university, spotted the body beside the rocky creek while on a photography expedition along Colo. 119, which runs through Boulder Canyon.

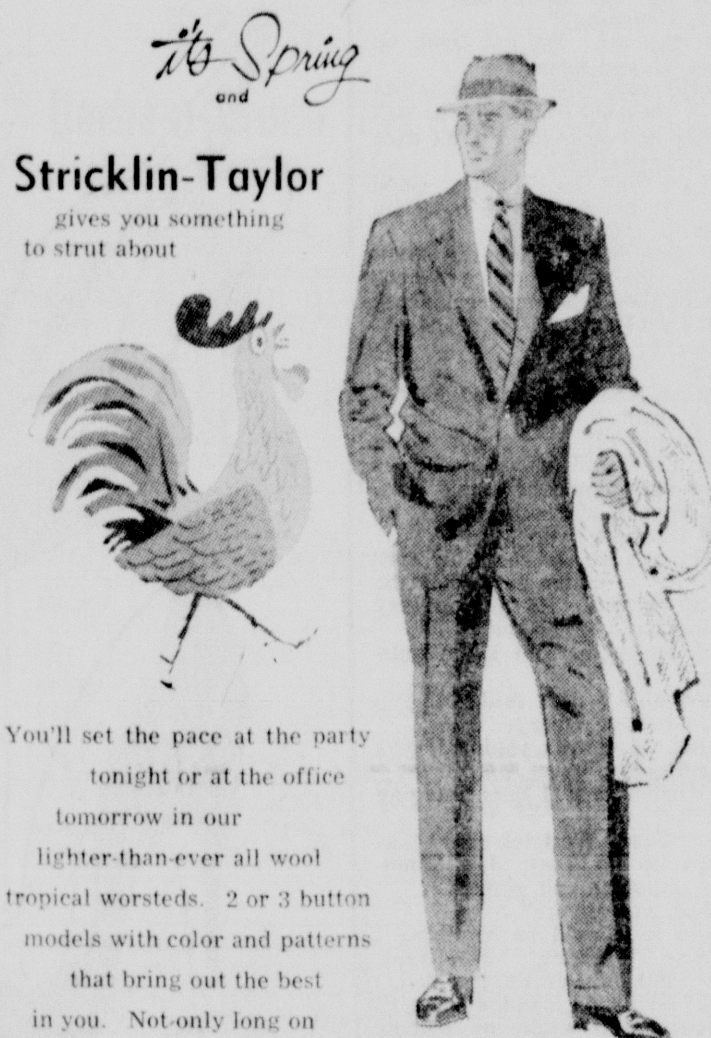

Everson estimated that the body had been thrown down a 30-foot embankment from the road about a week earlier. He was convinced that the girl had been killed somewhere else because there was no blood around the body, despite the fact that one arm had been broken so badly the bone protruded from the skin.

The sheriff said the girl appeared to have been about 17 years old, was 5 feet, 3 inches tall and weighed about 100 pounds.

The torso was badly bruised from the chest to the hips. One jaw bone had been fractured and the skull probably had been fractured. In recent weeks two young women have been reported missing to Denver police. But Sheriff Everson said both were too tall and heavy, according to their descriptions, to have been the slain girl.

Bull Dogs Win Opener Against Ridgway, 3 to 1

The Harrisburg Bull Dogs traveled to Ridgway yesterday afternoon and won their opening baseball tilt of the season, 3 to 1.

Darrel Powell, crafty southpaw, hurled the first five innings with Ed Evans pitching the sixth and Don Beal the seventh and final frame. Ronnie Bean was behind the plate. Mills went all the way for Ridgway with Barter receiving.

Harrisburg scored two runs in the second and one in the fifth to win. Ridgway tallied in the last inning; thus Powell was the winning pitcher.

Bean and David Rees, with two hits each, led the locals at the plate. Rees drove in two runs. Ken Dunn and Tom Golden got the other local bingles.

Coach Lawrence Calufetti started Jim Cummins at shortstop, Ken Dunn at second base, Russ McDowell at third, Ed Miller at first, Wayman Hefner in center, Tom Golden in left, David Rees in right, and Beal behind the plate. Also seeing action were Frank Santy at shortstop, Ronnie Mitchell at second base and Bob Evans at third base.

Petersen Picks Dodgers And Yankees to Win Flags; Predicts Cardinals Second

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, N. Y. — It looks like the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers for the World Series again, come October.

At least, that's the way it appears to this writer who personally scouted the 12 major league clubs training in Florida and received reports from the United Press sports writers who covered the teams which conditioned in Arizona.

It's strictly guesswork, for it's still spring when the rookies are blooming, but our pre-season dope has the teams finishing this way: National League American League
Brooklyn New York
St. Louis Cleveland
Milwaukee Chicago
New York Boston
Philadelphia Washington
Cincinnati Philadelphia
Chicago Detroit
Pittsburgh Baltimore

The Dodgers look like the class club of both leagues. They did last spring, too, and went on to clinch the National League pennant the earliest in the history of the circuit, only to fall before the Yankees in the World Series.

Battle For Runnerup Spot
Under a new manager, Walter Alston, the Dodgers have power, the best defensive club in the league, and with Don Newcombe back could well come up with the best pitching. They have fellows on the bench who would be regulars with other clubs.

It should be a tough battle between the Cardinals and Braves for the runnerup spot. The Braves will be hurt by the absence of Bobby Thomson, who broke an ankle in spring training, and it may be they gave up too much pitching to get the former Giant star and Danny O'Connell from the Pirates. The Cardinals strengthened by buying pitcher Vic Raschi from the Yankees and if two of their expensive purchases come through, shortstop Alex Grammas and first baseman Tom Alston, should beat out the Braves.

Phillies Have Weak Spots
The Giants figure to improve with Willie Mays back out of the service and the two pitchers acquired from the Braves in the Thomson deal, Johnny Antonelli and Don Liddle. The Phillies, with two of the best pitchers in the business in Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons, have too many weak spots, specially catching and right field. They are short on bench strength.

The Reds have a hard hitting club, but are weak defensively and lack dependable righthanded hurling. Neither the Cubs nor Pirates figure to be in the picture.

Casey Stengel's five-time World champions looked horrible most of the spring, but the Yankees still look like the class of the American League. They don't figure to spread-eagle the field as they did last year, but like the Dodgers they have players on the bench who could make most of the other clubs as regulars. Old age may turn out to be the Yankees' big problem, for fellows like Allie Reynolds, Ed Lopat and Phil Rizzuto are starting to show signs of wear and tear.

White Sox Lack Power
Cleveland will have the pitching again and Dave Philley should help in the outfield, but the club still hasn't plugged defensive gaps. The White Sox lack power hitters, but have the speed and spirit a championship club needs. A lot of Chicago's chances depend on whether 20-game winner Virgil Trucks can have another season like he did in 1953.

Lou Boudreau's Red Sox will miss Ted Williams and may have too much young blood, although the youth movement is bound to pay dividends in the way of a pennant before too many years. The Senators have a team tailor-made for spacious Griffith Stadium but lack the power it takes to win games on the road. But there isn't a better manager in baseball than Bucky Harris, who seems to be able to take over castoffs from other clubs and develop them into stars.

Philadelphia figures to improve under Eddie Joost, but the new A's pilot just doesn't have the horses. Neither does Freddie Hutchinson of the Tigers nor Jimmy Dykes of the Orioles.

Award Letters To Eldorado Cage Players

State's Attorney
Glen Jones Praises
Squad in Address

Basketball players of the Eldorado Township high school were honor guests at a dinner held in the ETHS cafeteria Thursday evening and the program included the awarding of varsity and sophomore letters, an address by State's Attorney Glen Jones and the showing of a movie — highlights of the 1954 basketball tournament held at the University of Illinois last month.

In his talk to the players, Atty. Jones praised them for the fine sportsmanship they had exhibited during the past season and said that this sportsmanship was made possible by their desire to play the game according to the rules.

He then urged that they always conduct themselves according to the rules in the game of life, to live by the rules of honor and decency and to always be proud to be found on the side of right. The rules of life, Jones told the audience, were the Ten Commandments.

Letter Winners

Varsity "Es" were awarded by Coach Al Adams to twelve players, including nine seniors. Letter winners were Rex Long, Paul Mackovjak, Ron McRoy, James Cochran, Jim Omohundro, Ronnie Smith, Gary Thomas, Richard Banks and Jackie Reese, seniors, and Keith Whittier, Gene Barrett and Jim Lyons, juniors.

Sophomore letters were awarded by Coach Charles Leonard to Laffoon, Chandler, Lovellette, Willis, Clark, Moore, Potts, Stroke and Putnam.

Freshman Coach Gene Haile introduced members of the yearling squad and revealed letters would be given out at a later date as they did not arrive in time for the dinner.

Brother Charles Branum, pastor of the Eldorado Christian church, was toastmaster, being introduced by Principal W. A. Knoop and the invocation was given by Rev. James Johnson.

The school colors of Purple and Gold were used in table decorations and the two trophies won this season occupied a prominent place. Eldorado took first place in the blind draw meet at Cairo and second place in the Saline county tournament held in Harrisburg.

Merchants Play Nash Ramblers Sunday Afternoon

The Harrisburg Merchants play host to Gene Stone's Nash Ramblers Sunday afternoon in the final of a two-game series. The Merchants won the first encounter, 12-2.

The Ramblers, a youthful and a bit inexperienced club, showed some fine promise of good baseball, perhaps before the season is over. Don Karnes, whom the Cairo newspaper saved about last season, Bill Fulkerson, a smoothie with a glove, and Jack Nolen kept the Merchants on their heels last Sunday with sparkling defensive plays.

The entire Merchant squad will see action Sunday in order to pick a starting lineup for the first road game. The local squad received another lift last week when Freddie Williams, an S. I. U. baseball standout, and versatile Billy McNew reported. Bobby Martin and Val Gribble, two regulars from last year's team, are still absent due to school activities.

The Ramblers' hurlers will be Prayther and Parker with Wilson catching, and the Merchants will have Yarber, Sisky and Kennedy with Romonosky receiving. Don Wallace, who has been throwing regular all winter, will be held in reserve.

Dodgers' 'Murderer's Row' Loses Wallop in Grapefruit League Play

By United Press

There's good news today for the Brooklyn Dodgers' National League rivals — the "murderer's row" of which terrorized pitchers enroute to the 1953 pennant seems to have lost its lethal wallop.

That, at least, is the evidence of the Dodgers' 31 Grapefruit League games in which the eight regulars who averaged 307 last season combined for a modest 278 percentage. The same eight players averaged 21 home runs last season but hit a total of only 11 homers all spring. Pee Wee Reese, with a .298 spring average compared to his .271 mark last season, is the only Brooklyn regular to surpass his 1953 average in Grapefruit League games. Junior Gilliam matched his .278 of 1953 but Roy Campanella shows a drop of 38 points. Gil Hodges, of 33 points, Jackie Robinson of 6, Duke Snider of 44, Carl Furillo of 36 and Billy Cox of 112.

Campanella has hit three homers, Cox, Snider and Furillo have hit two each and Hodges and Robinson have connected for only one each. Gilliam and Reese have failed to connect for a single round-tripper.

The Dodgers turned three walks into as many runs and tallied three other unearned runs Thursday night as they defeated the Washington Senators, 6-2, and quit the road for friendly Ebbers Field, where they meet the New York Yankees today. Preacher Roe blanked the Senators for four innings and then turned over the mound to Joe Black who yielded a two-run homer to Mickey Vernon. Balding Bobo learned to fight this quaint way in Hawaii. He was employed by a night club to hang around the back door, waiting for troublesome characters to get shoved out; one punch and, boom! the character was through for the night.

Ezz Charles, still called Snooks by Manager Jake Mintz, sports a new-style cropped haircut. Explains Ezz, "This way I get up in the morning—there's nothing to do, except brush the lint out." Mintz used to fight under the name of Jack O'Boyle. "That way I had everybody going for me. The Jewish people in town knew who I was and the Irish took me for my name."

Roland LaStarza dropped in on us from his London fiasco against Don Cocker. Said Roland: "Next time we should fight in neutral territory—Madison Square Garden."

Vic Raschi's sobriquet among those who know him best—i.e., the Yankees — is "Onionhead." Think it's a gamble rookie third-sacker Don Hoak will make the Dodgers? He's from Roulette, Pa. Put this prediction in your hat: Willie Mays will hit more than 300 for the Giants; Roy Campanella will hit below .300 for the Brooks.

According to Frank Leahy, assistant Joe McArdle (now selling storm windows in South Bend) didn't succeed The Master as coach because he wasn't a Notre Dame grad.

Capable pitching marked most of Thursday's other games as the teams neared the end of their long barnstorming grinds and began heading for home and their opening day assignments.

Clarence (Bud) Podbielan nailed down Cincinnati's opening day mound chore when he scattered seven hits in six innings in the Cincinnati Reds' 4-1 triumph over the Detroit Tigers. The victory gave the Reds a 4-1 margin over the Tigers in their spring series.

White Sox Beat Cardinals
Bob Buhl scored his fifth victory of the spring — most of any Grapefruit League pitcher — as he went the distance in the Milwaukee Braves' 5-3 verdict over the Boston Red Sox. Slugger Ed Math-cws' three-run home run in the third inning provided the Braves with the runs they needed to score their first victory in five tries over the Red Sox.

Billy Pierce allowed only one run in eight innings in leading the Chicago White Sox to a 6-2 win over the St. Louis Cardinals in a game that marked the first time Negroes and Whites competed together in Memphis, Tenn.

In games against minor league teams, the Yankees spoiled Richmond's home debut with a 7-2 victory over the Virginians and the Philadelphia Phillies downed Schenectady, 7-5, at Bonnettsville, S. C.

The New York Giants, rained out of their game with the Cleveland Indians at Chattanooga, Tenn., announced the sale of south-paw Dave Koslo to the Baltimore Orioles while the Chicago Cubs said slugger Ralph Kiner would be sidelined with a pulled leg muscle for the next three days but expected him to be ready for Tuesday's opener with the Cardinals.

Stassen Outlines New Allied Policy of Trading With Iron Curtain Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign aid chief Harold E. Stassen said today the free world seeks to trade more non-strategic goods with Iron Curtain nations to woo Soviet peoples to peace.

Stassen told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the new allied trade policy "will not in fact aid the war potential of the Soviet Union in any significant way, and does carry a net advantage to the free world."

Tight controls on East-West trade, he said, have caused mounting "people unrest" behind the Iron Curtain over shortages of consumer items.

In that case, asked Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.): "Why shouldn't we put the pressure on?" Stassen replied that a dictatorship can always put first priority on military goods and let consumers suffer.

Face Long-Term Struggle
The new policy set by the United States, Britain and France, he said, is designed to allow more trade in peaceful goods between East and West, with the aim of turning the whole economy of the Soviet bloc toward peace.

than deprive their people of some consumer goods.

Josef Stalin would never have done that, Stassen said.

Stassen had said previously the allied agreement reached at London would not mean inclusion of materials that would help build up the Soviet war machine.

Harmful Insects Aerial Hitchhikers

GENEVA—Millions of insects travel throughout the world on the fuselages of aircraft and are responsible for the spread of such crippling diseases as malaria, yellow fever, sleeping sickness, typhus and plague, the United Nations World Health Organization reports. Sanitary control authorities can't always detect such stowaways which may lodge in the cabin or luggage hold of a plane, or be taken aboard on the clothes of passengers or on flowers presented to them.

WHO also noted that certain insects lay their eggs at various places on aircraft and that these eggs survive altitude and temperature changes.

WHO cited one example where thousands of larvae emerged from such eggs and swarmed all over the surface of a plane.

Airborne insects are most often mosquitoes, flies, lice, sometimes ticks, beetles, cockroaches and Colorado beetles.

The presence of rats, birds and snakes has also been noted on aircraft. They have been carried long distances and "it is not difficult to imagine the resulting difficulties and the danger to the aircraft itself."

"Strict surveillance of aircraft and of airdromes is, therefore, absolutely essential," the WHO report said, adding that "this passive defense can only be effective, however, if it is complemented by more active measures which will remove all possibility of transporting live insects in aircraft."

When Harry Truman said there wasn't an eyeful of Communists in the country, Arch Nearbrite wondered if he had in mind one of the eyes of the red herring he referred to in the Alger Hiss case.

WASHINGTON (U)—Happy days are here again for fellows like Joseph Scott. The tourist season is here.

Joe and his pals are guides, lecturers and drivers who escort the sight-seers around the Washington area.

"When we work," Scott told me, "us guides make something like $1.90 an hour. That's pretty good, and the season is short—but what we have to put up with! Wowie!"

"We drive 'em up to the Big Place at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue and they ask us: 'Who lives there?' Some of 'em, that is. And after they are escorted in, they ask us a lot of other questions like: 'Who lives in the East Room?'"

A guide has to bone up on his history in the off-season to be able to keep up with the tourists. 5,000,000 of 'em coming in to see the sights each year.

Given Hard Time

What does the average tourist ask to see when he comes in? Most of them want to go to Mt. Vernon to see George Washington's home. They also want to see how their elected representatives earn their keep in Congress. And they want to run through the White House.

Some of them give you a bad time.

"Like," said Joe, "the folks I took out on a 4½ hour trip to Mt. Vernon. They looked the place over and didn't believe it was Washington's home. They asked for their money back."

But Joe was equal to the situation. He gave them some folders, including pictures of what they had just seen. Told them if they weren't convinced they could show up at the tourist office next morning and get their fare back.

"They never came back," Joe said.

Slow Up For Camera Fans

Joe said that his bosses teach him and the others to slow up for some of their best customers, who are camera fans.

"We stop our busses and, by golly, we have to know every oak tree in the neighborhood. We also have to know every nook and cranny in the Department of Interior, Commerce, the Capitol and the Supreme Court building. And we have to know something about everybody who ever lived in the White House—the first up to the present."

Somebody stopped Joe the other day. A lady from California asked him who cut Mrs. Eisenhower's bangs.

He got out of it by saying: "I don't know, lady. But don't blame me!"

And what do Joe and his pals do in the off season?

Some of them drive cabs. Others raise chickens.

Joe Scott just counts his pennies and waits for the blossoms.

Air National Guard Ready, Congress Told

WASHINGTON (U)—The Air National Guard has been put on a "ready-to-go" basis and could get some of its air defense squadrons into action against a threatened attack within 45 minutes, Congress has been advised.

The House Armed Services Committee made public testimony to this effect as it began secret hearings on a new $896,976,600 military construction program, much of it geared to a tighter continental defense against atomic attacks.

The developments pointed up growing official concern over how best to ward off a possible air assault on this country. President Eisenhower has said this isn't likely, but that Russian leaders could touch off war in a fit of madness or through miscalculations.

In closed-door testimony, made public with some deletions today, Brig. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief of the air division of the National Guard Bureau, told the armed services group the Air Guard's 49 squadrons by June 30 will be equipped with 641 jet aircraft, including sub-sonic F94 all-weather fighter-interceptors.

This compares with about 1,000 jet fighters now available to the regular Air Force for continental defense. Wilson said his 2,564 weekend pilots are prepared to race from job to plane in event of an alert and to "scramble" close behind the regulars.

ANTIBIOTIC-AGE CHICKS

Some day we may develop chicks especially adapted to the age of antibiotics. Research men at the Iowa Station found that one strain of heavy chickens grew 22.6 percent faster to 8 weeks when they were fed antibiotics. Another strain showed an increase of only 6.3 percent. The average response for nine groups was 12.7 percent. In this test chicks on antibiotics showed a death loss of 3.7 percent; those without, 9.1 percent.—Cap-ter's Farmer.

Relief from Tax 'Drought'
Will Only Sprinkle Some

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— There doesn't seem to be any such thing as an average taxpayer. So, when it comes to figuring out how much a taxpayer of modest income is going to benefit from the Republican administration's new tax bill, the subject becomes a bit confusing.

There will be an estimated 47 million individual income tax returns filed this year. The total benefits from the removal of "in-equities" in next year's taxes, if the pending tax reform bill is passed, is estimated at $690 million.

It does not follow that the average taxpayer will have his taxes cut by an average $15. Some may get that much or more. But over half of them aren't going to get any relief at all.

Deductions and credits to reduce the double taxation on dividends received by individuals offer an excellent illustration. Next year, it is proposed that there will be no tax on the first $50 of income from dividends. For dividends over $50 received, a 3 per cent credit will be allowed. This will supposedly reduce taxes collected on all dividends received by $240 million.

The trouble is, there are only six to eight million Americans who own stocks and receive dividends. This is only one-sixth to one-eighth, approximately, of the 47 million income taxpayers. These stockholders will therefore benefit only $30 to $40 apiece, on average.

The only other group of taxpayers of comparable size who will benefit from the removal of these inequities is made up of those who have medical expenses in excess of 3 per cent of their adjusted gross income. Present law allows deductions for those having medical expenses in excess of 5 per cent adjusted gross income.

This change is supposed to benefit an estimated eight million taxpayers. The total amount the change will cut income tax collections next year is estimated at $80 million. So the average taxpayer having medical expenses of over 3 per cent of his adjusted gross income next year is going to benefit by $10.

Another inequity to be removed will permit unmarried taxpayers—single or widowed persons who support dependents—to split their income for income tax purposes, the same as married couples now do. This is supposed to benefit about a million unmarried heads of families for a total of $50 million. The average benefit in tax reduction will be about $50.

In somewhat the same category, parents whose children earn more than $600 a year would still be allowed to claim $600 income credit for each such dependent. It is estimated that this change will benefit a million and a half parents for a total of about $75 million next year. The average tax cut would be $50.

To remove another inequity, it is proposed to allow working parents a credit of $600 for baby sitting and child care expenses. Only half a million working parents are expected to get any benefit from this, though it will cut tax collections $40 million. The average tax benefit for each working parent affected will be $80.

In an effort to put all retired workers on the same basis as those receiving tax-free U. S. social security benefits, the next tax bill would exclude from federal income taxation the first $1200 from pensions, annuities, rents, interest and dividends received by retired persons over 65. Tax experts estimate this will benefit about a million elderly taxpayers.

It would reduce income tax collections from them all by an estimated $125 million a year. The average benefit for each of these taxpayers of 65 and over would thus be $125 a year.

What this all adds up to is a pretty selective reduction of income taxes for people in special circumstances. It is in no way comparable to a flat increase of $100 in personal exemption for everybody. This would cost the government an estimated $24 billion next year and benefit the average of 47 million taxpayers by $50 apiece.

Yesterday's Luxuries Today's Necessities

PHILADELPHIA — People now have many more "necessities" than they did in 1940, and there is no way of estimating their wants 10 years from now, according to J. Harry LaBrum, former president of the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

LaBrum told the Philadelphia Controllers Institute that it's safe to say the "want" thermometer will register several degrees higher 10 years from now than it does at present.

A young couple of 1940 might have been "perfectly satisfied to rent an apartment and live there for an indefinite period," he said, but today a couple want a house of their own.

"And because they have educated themselves for higher-paying jobs, they can afford it," LaBrum said. "They will either build a new home or buy an older one and renovate it. They either have an automobile, or they will buy one shortly."

"They wouldn't consider being without a mechanical refrigerator, a washing machine or a television set and they probably plan on a deep freezer in the not too distant future."

Passion Play Presented As Special Episode of TV's "This Is the Life"

Thomas, the Apostle who doubted Christ's resurrection, then got conclusive proof of it, is the central figure of the special Easter episode of TV's dramatic "This Is the Life," to be televised on Sunday, April 18, at 3:30 p. m. on WSIL TV.

Imprisoned and sentenced to death for his faith, Thomas gives strength to his fellow prisoners as he tells them the inspiring passion story. The entire story is re-enacted, the Last Supper, the Betrayal by Judas, the Trial and Crucifixion and the Resurrection.

This timely presentation of "This Is the Life's" special Easter episode brings to life the powerful words of the Bible, the dramatic moment of Christ's death, when with the very earth shaken, the Roman soldier gazed humbly at the cross and whispered, "this was indeed the Son of God."

Inhibitors
There are a number of chemicals which keep fats and oils from becoming rancid. They are called inhibitors and are used extensively in compounding automobile motor oils, but they are not edible and so cannot be used to preserve fats used in cooking. However, there are certain natural materials, such as Vitamin E and oat flour which have some value in the latter application.

Sleep Position Varies

Navy Alerted to Prevent Smuggling A-Bombs Into U. S.

WASHINGTON AP—The Navy has sent a detailed directive to all its units in a new government move to prevent smuggling of atomic bombs into the United States.

Alerting ships and shore stations to the danger, the instructions contain what is described as "all releasable information regarding probable physical properties of such weapons."

The document, issued from the office of Navy Secretary Robert B. Anderson, is more detailed than recent FBI information on the same subject distributed to civilian agencies.

An assembled atomic device probably can be made small enough to fit the luggage compartment of a standard size automobile, the Navy directive says, or it may be large enough to require "an automobile packing crate." Weight may range from "a few hundred pounds up to some five tons."

Smuggled parts could be assembled in a "reasonably dry" space such as a basement with no unusual tools, other than a chain hoist, needed, the directive said. "Assembly can be done by a relatively unskilled person with a short period of training in a matter of hours."

AF Rescue Team In Far East Is Always Alert

By FRANK JORDAN

United Press Staff Correspondent
KADENA AIR FORCE BASE, Okinawa — The huge Globe-master transport plane was two hours out of Okinawa when it radioed it was off course and probably would run out of gas short of the island. Aboard were 113 passengers.

Within minutes after the distress call, nine planes had headed north from Okinawa. One was a specially-equipped B-29 superfortress. It was followed by two air force amphibians, two Navy seaplanes and four twin-engined C-47's equipped with pontoons.

At the same time, two crash boats, put out from Okinawa. With them went an Army tug and a Navy aircraft tender.

The planes picked up the wandering transport and homed it straight into the runway of this air base. The transport landed with only 12 minutes of gas in its tanks. 44 Squadrons

Had it run out of fuel over the Pacific, however, the B-29 could have parachuted a me boat. The other planes could have landed on the water and picked up the rest of the passengers.

It was just another job for the Air Force's air rescue service, a world-wide network of 44 squadrons that stands watch over and under the military air lanes.

The 33rd and 34th squadrons, based on Okinawa, are among the service's most important units. Together they cover the largest single area, 720,000 square miles of Pacific.

Their territory runs 600 miles north and south and about 1,200 miles east and west from Iwo Jima to the coast of Red China. Through this "critical" area flies Air Force traffic to and from Guam, Iwo Jima, Japan, the Philippines and Okinawa, all vital Far East bases. Different Jobs

The 20th Air Force's rescue coordination center on Okinawa works with the squadrons in controlling any plane or ship that takes part in any rescue operations.

The 33rd and 34th perform different jobs. The 33rd's for amphibians, two helicopters and two C-47's handle short-range rescue work, while the four B-29's of the 34th take the long-range missions.

During the Korean war, the 34th sent its planes with the superforts from Okinawa that pounded North Korea two nights out of three. Staying 100 miles south of the battleline, the rescue planes waited for the bombers and then escorted them back to Okinawa.

"When we added rescue planes to the bombing missions the number of bombs on the target increased," said Maj. Malcolm C. Frazee, San Diego, Calif. "A pilot with only three engines operating didn't think twice about going over the target as long as he knew the rescue planes were close enough to bail him out of trouble."

Frazee commands the 33rd air rescue squadron, which works closely with the 34th under the second air rescue group. 102 Lives Saved

Each of the 34th's B-29's carries a long motor boat attached to the underside of the fuselage. When a plane ditches in the water, a rescue B-29 drops a boat by means of a 100-foot parachute.

The boat is equipped to feed and clothe 18 persons, and its powerful motor will take them to the nearest land. If the motor fails, the boat's emergency sails will do the trick if they are handled with an elementary knowledge of seamanship.

But equipment is no good unless it saves lives, and the 33rd can point with pride to its record.

In the 12 months ended last October, Frazee's outfit saved 102 lives. They ranged from Japanese fishermen whose boat capsized in a bombing range off Okinawa to a sick airman on an isolated island flown to Okinawa for a life-saving operation.

Understanding the work of the air rescue squadron is cold fact. "There are other human factors involved," Frazee said, "but you can't get away from the fact that it costs a lot less to rescue a downed airman than to train another to take his place."
